TRANS WORLD SERVICE
TWA's unique

A bold new look. An exciting new service. A whole new way of crossing the Atlantic. It's called Trans World Service.

Almost all transatlantic airlines utilize the same type of planes on regularly scheduled services, the most popular being the renowned U.S. designed and built Boeing 747. This is where the similarity ends, and the TWA Trans World Service difference begins.

On board, in the seat you select, in a smoking or non-smoking cabin, Trans World Service gives you a choice of three international main courses at dinner, even in economy class.

Two movies and eight channels of audio entertainment include foreign films, Hollywood spectaculars, international music and interviews with leading recording artists, all for a small fee.

On your return via New York, TWA has a U.S. Customs facility at John F. Kennedy International Airport. Famed Flight Wing One is for the exclusive use of TWA passengers and can help speed you on your way to any of the 34 cities covered by TWA's extensive domestic route — more than any other international airline.

It all adds up to Trans World Service: a big reason why you really do get more for your money with TWA.
